Recognizing the Friend-zone

Being friend-zoned is a situation that can happen to anyone. Loosely defined, friend-zone is a situation where the person you like doesn't like you as much as you do. This, can happen to anyone and has probably already happened at one point of your life! However, as one matures, going through this motion can be very annoying especially if you are at a point in your life where you are looking for a long term relationship and to settle with someone you truly care about. "How to Get Out of the Friendzone" is an E-Book to look into if you are looking for ways to work your situation at the moment.

Take the Initiative!

Like the bud of a flower, a friendship can bloom depending on how you treat and value it. The book shows you strategies of making this work. First of all, you need to be able to identify if, at all, this is happening to you. Knowing that the person close to you is who you want to be with, but they, on the other hand want to keep things the way they are, can be very painful But don't let this get the best of you. To evolve the situation, it is suggested that you take the initiative.

Don't wait for the situation to be on your side. By know what your chances are you can make thing happen for you, instead. A great point made at the end of the book is to keep the romance alive while it's there. Romance is not about the butterflies you have in your tummy when you see them, or limited to the happy moments only. It is also about appreciating them for the person they are. The butterflies will fade away at one point. The true challenge is to stay in love for good.
